

Your travel4seniors.com editor recently had the great pleasure of guest dining and wining at what patrons simply call The 21. The club originally operated as a notorious speakeasy during the prohibition 1920s. Then it evolved in the 1930s as the posh hangout for America's famous actors, musicians, authors, business tycoons, politicians and a few gangsters.

The club's extensive wine cellar still has vintage private bottles from some of the most famous patrons. They include Presidents Nixon and Ford, Sophia Loren, Elizabeth Taylor, Mae West and Aristotle Onassis.

In addition to the excellent food and wine, the club's walls are filled with great art, featuring works of Frederic Remington, McClelland Barclay, James Montgomery Flagg and many others. It's also famous for its display of cartoons by Walt Disney, Ham Fisher, Peter Arno and others.
