

Q: Choices are many and my spouse and I consider them Sin City's most sinfully great attractions. So, is it OK to doggy bag our leftovers to snack later in our room, the casino and hotel pool? HLMcJ, Sacramento CA

A: Doggy bagging is a no-no at Vegas buffets. However, if you're sneaky enough and have a handy bag you can quickly stash into a pocket or purse, go for it. Just don't tell them we said you could. Actually, consider how buffet prices have skyrocketed in recent years. When we visited Vegas way, way back around 1999, average breakfast and lunch each were $5, and dinner $10. Now they're $25, $45 and higher. So, enjoy your doggy bagging!
