

Since our retirement a decade ago, we've done a lot of traveling. France, Hawaii, Las Vegas and our favorite annual trip, Hong Kong. However, according to recent news, there's a big street riot there almost every day and night. And they may to be getting more violent. What's your opinion? LFMcN, Houston TX

A: Hong Kong has long been considered one of the world's safest for visitors. However, since the mainland China government took over the city, there have been more and more street demonstrations. Visiting these days isn't extra dangerous, except if you find yourself in the middle of a protest demonstration or march with police on the scene.

So, when you plan to venture out to eat, drink or shop, stay away from riot locations. Before you wander, ask hotel employees for up-to-date info on disturbance areas and when to avoid them.