

It's tough enough for American senior tourists who rent cars in England. They must learn to drive on the wrong side of the road. Then, if they do decide to motor while sipping tea and/or munching a shepherd's pie, a British Bobby may pull them over. The resulting traffic ticket could cost up to $160.

So, senior traveler, when you're driving in the UK, no matter how hungry you are for some fish and chips, make sure both hands are firmly on the wheel.
