

Before and during wanderings, don't broadcast your ongoing itinerary on social media. For example, you post daily schedule lists, sightseeing video and photos on Facebook to send to family and friends online.

The most vulnerable mistake is that your house is empty while you travel, and ready for thieves who daily search the internet for robbery opportunities. Wait until you return home to post vacation photos and travel experiences.