

Book an inexpensive night or more in a hostel, to have informal chats among the bunks with those who can learn from you, a seasoned wanderer. They benefit from your travel and worldly knowledge, as well as feel free to ask questions. Then, when you're on your way in the morning, you'll be satisfied that you've passed on some of your mature thoughts and helpful suggestions to those who can profit from them.